

G'day Asia Incursion

Performer Hugh Munro entranced students with his large puppets which he used to telling them about different countries in Asia. They travelled to Indonesia with monkey and orang-utan to experience the ritual of making and burning monsters on Nyepi day in Bali. They also learned about the orang-utans and their fight for survival in Kalimantan.

Elephant took students to Thailand and India while Panda shared stories and customs from China. The biggest surprise was the huge dragon that some lucky students were chosen to take for a dance around the crowd. They were also allowed to make a lot of noise!

Bailey and Ruby were lucky enough to get the royal treatment as Japanese emperor and empress, having a mat laid out before them by servants as they walked.
