

“Escape to Everywhere”
Bookweek 2017

PART ONE: THE ESCAPE

It was an exciting part of our Bookweek celebrations as the whole school followed the theme and “escaped” school for the morning. Excitement built as the students gathered in their costumes under the Room 1-2 covered area to shelter from the misting rain.

Fortunately the drizzle cleared as everyone made their way across the highway and into town.

The children split into two groups, with one group heading up to and along Rose Street, raising much interest from the townsfolk.

As they approached the Repertory Theatre, the brightly costumed group were greeted by an overly enthusiastic Mad March Hare and a rather creepy Old Crone.

Meanwhile, the other half of the students made their way along Giblett St and around to the Town Library. After each group had enjoyed a presentation at their respective venues, they swapped locations and activities, before heading back to school. The walk along the main streets of Manjimup was an absolute highlight for everyone, providing plenty of opportunity to show off their costumes.

Thank you to the family members who joined our journey, and to all the people who greeted us along the way. Read on to find out what happened at the Library and Repertory Theatre.
